

As soon as Taylor learned Grandpa had some yard and garden work to do, she offered to help, and was a great help too! She hoe'd weeds from the garden and picked up the 'twirlies' that the Elm tree dropped. She even volunteered to hand clean them from the bird bath! Of course, one has to play a little in the water after getting it all cleaned out.

Right Photo: We had a sudden downpour as Taylor watches the rain come down while keeping dry on the front porch, rocking in the rocker her Dad bought her. After all that work we treated her by going to the park where she fed the birds and played on the playground equipment. May 7, 2005
